

Cleantech IP

Innovation continues to distinguish the best cleantech companies from the rest. Part and parcel of capitalizing on innovation is the protection and commercialization of intellectual property (IP). Gowlings brings extensive experience in helping clients file, commercialize and enforce their patents worldwide. We offer Canada's largest complement of IP professionals who bring the varied and advanced technical and scientific backgrounds necessary to manage the needs of cleantech companies.

Gowlings was named "Canadian Patent Firm of the Year" in 2007 by Managing Intellectual Property (MIP) and has been consistently ranked as a leader in patents by Managing Intellectual Property's World IP Survey. Gowlings' patent professionals are also recognized in the Lexpert's Guide to the World's Leading Patent Law Practitioners.

We understand the needs of cleantech businesses and institutions of all types, from universities, to start-ups to large multinational corporations. Our multidisciplinary approach to legal services provides practical and effective solutions for cleantech clients, and our customized IP solutions ensure the unique needs of individual businesses are respected and their objectives met.
